

Last name, First name	E-Mail	Institutional affiliation	Research profile
Haralambakis, Maria	Maria.haralambakis[at]gmail. com	University of Manchester (Centre for Biblical Studies, Department of Religions and Theology)	My interest is in biblical and apocryphal narratives (Second Temple/Greco-Roman periods) and their reception in Slavonic and Byzantine medieval contexts. I have completed my PhD, which I am currently preparing for publication, on “The Testament of Job: Text, Narrative and Reception History.” One chapter is devoted to narratology and its application to the Testament of Job with the purpose of gaining insight in how the story works. I am planning to continue to develop my interest in narratology in future research and publications.